Presentation

Training Schools (TS) aim to facilitate capacity building on a topic relevant to the theme of the respective COST Action through the delivery of intensive training on a new or emerging subject

This TS is part of the UE COST Action 18137: European Middle-Class Mass Housing

The main challenge of this Cost Action is to create a transnational network that gathers European researchers carrying studies on Middle-Class Mass Housing (MCMH) built in Europe since the 1950s. This network will allow the development new scientific approaches by discussing, testing, and assessing case studies and their different methodologies and perspectives.

Traineees:

In the Training School participate 17 local students (Madrid) and 13 foreigners selected by the Core Group of COST Action 18137.

The Training School is aimed at new PhD & Master students of different backgrounds who have a research interest in public policies and collective housing issues. It aims to develop tools to critically analyse urban intervention, identifying the aspects that condition public policies of collective housing in Madrid's context and cross it the other European contexts.

Registration to the Training School is free. Selected participants from outside the Madrid Community will have financial support.

To be selected as trainee, it is essential to complete attached the application form.

OBJECTIVES

Main objective:

The general objective of the Training School is to learn about the public policies on collective housing applied in Madrid in the second half of the 20th century and to evaluate their social, urban and political suitability by analysing unique cases from different periods.

Within the framework of Cost Action 18137, it is expected that the results of the Training school would provide data and analysis that would allow:

- To examine if public policies on collective housing have been suitable instruments for the configuration and consolidation of the middle class, characterized, among other criteria, by the provision (possession) of decent housing.
- To know the current problems of these groups –therefore, the policies that supported them - and, if necessary, to redefine possible intervention strategies.

Specific training objectives:

Introduction to analysis concepts and instruments of public policies and collective housing sets.

To know the development of collective housing policies in Madrid through the analysis of cases during the period 1939-act.

Acquisition of the tools to carry out critical analysis on urban intervention

To identify the aspects that condition public policies of collective housing from the triangle of social habitat defined by M. Castell and others: urbs, civitas and polis.

Generate academic networks at European level

Methodology:

The Training school will bring together three teaching instruments:

- Theoretical and historical sessions with key speakers.
- Expert guided tours and technical sheets of the selects case studies.
- Workshop sessions aimed at achieving the general objectives indicates. We will work in groups of six students, applying a role-playing methodology based on the social habitat triangle. Each group will have a teacher and/or a support expert.

Participation:

The TS is face-to-face and attendance is compulsory, controlled by personal signature.

Attendance at the Training School is restricted to those enrolled but the conferences on Monday October 4 and the session on Thursday October 7 are public.
